Run this off on orange construction paper and trim. Using an exact knife cut on the window lines making slits on the top, right and bottom. The windows will then open like a door. Give the lowercase yellow house under this one.

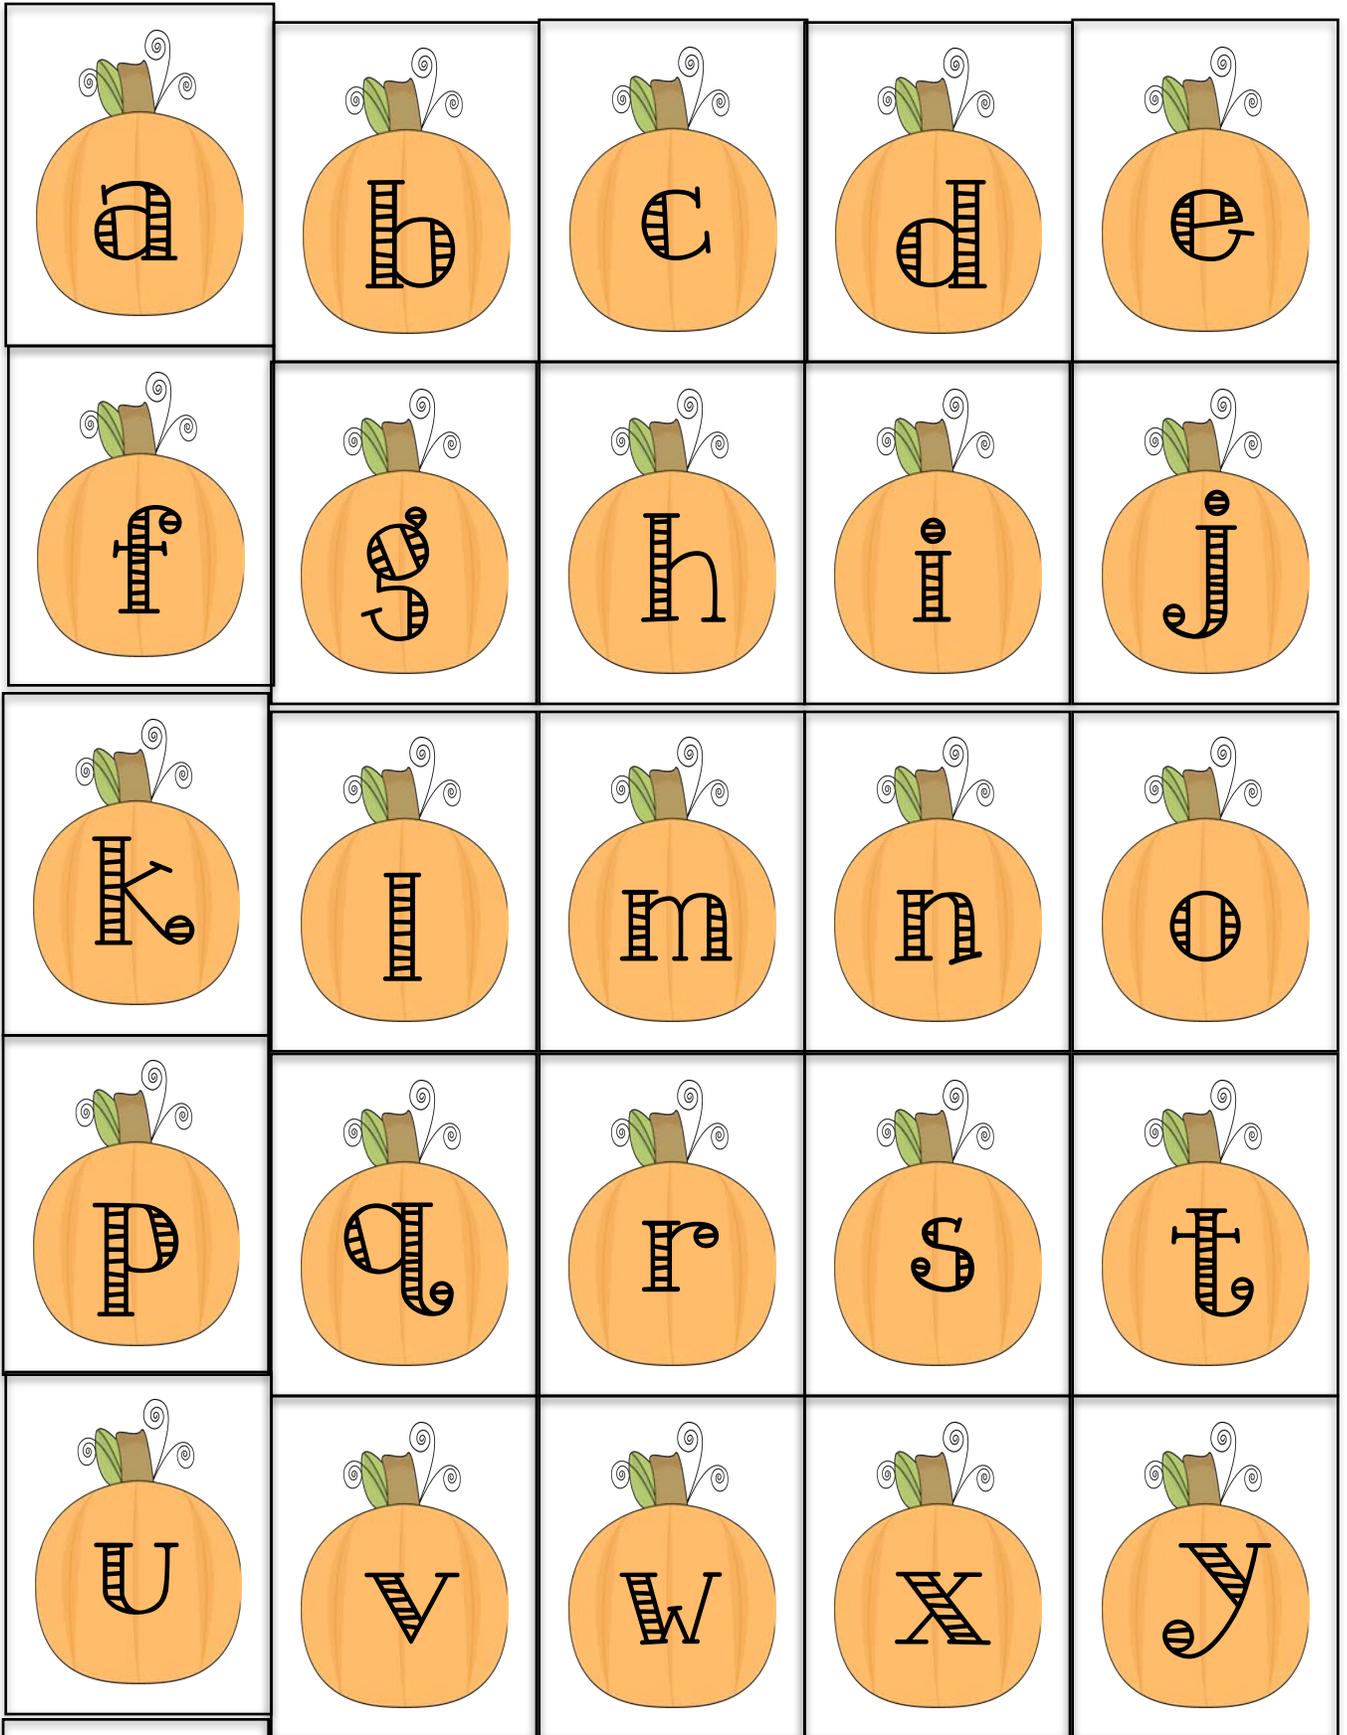

Children choose a lowercase pumpkin card and then open the matching uppercase window.

Run this off on yellow construction paper. After you have cut the window slits of the upper case house, glue it on top of this lowercase one. I used Elmer's glue. Once glued, trim around the yellow edges. Children choose a lowercase pumpkin card and then open the matching uppercase window.

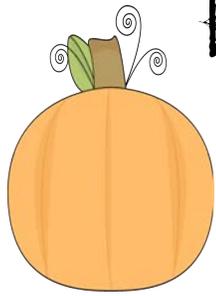

To add more fun to this review game, buy a "screamer" button. They have all sorts of goofy noise making devices at Halloween. If a wrong answer is given, secretly hit the scream button & give that student another chance.

Print; laminate & trim. Students choose a lowercase pumpkin card and open the window flap of the matching uppercase letter. You can use this as a whole group game, independent center, or fun way to assess. TeachWithMe.com

Haunted House Upper and Lowercase Matching Game

To protect my haunted house, I glued it to a blue sheet of construction paper, then glued it to the inside of a file folder.

I taped an envelope to the left side, and keep the laminated lowercase pumpkin cards inside.

I glued this sign to the front of the envelope.

Students can play this game as an independent center or you can fold the front of the file folder back so that only the uppercase haunted house is showing.

Pass out a lowercase pumpkin card to each child.

Call out a letter and the child who has that letter comes up, puts the card back in the envelope and then opens the matching uppercase "window" flap.

You can also use this as an interesting and fun way to individually assess a child.

Ask them to point to the uppercase letters, and/or find the matching lowercase pumpkin card for whatever uppercase letter you point to.

The broken shutters banged in the howling wind.

If a haunted house could talk, what might it say?

LOOK!

If I Bought A Haunted House...

I would do a bit of renovating so that it was livable.
So that it generated income during the year, the upstairs would be turned into lovely "haunted" bedrooms that would be marketed as a "Bed & Breakfast".
The bottom portion of the house would be a museum filled with antiques & secondhand items for sale, and the kitchen would not only offer breakfast, but be a lunchbox store.
During October, I would decorate it to the hilt for Halloween, and market it as a party venue.
On Halloween, I would stage a fund raising party, complete with music, food and games. The proceeds of the ticket sales would go to local charities.

Haunted Houses Are...

If I lived In A Haunted House

Display flat or . . . suspend back-to-back from the ceiling.

There are 2-parts to this haunted house writing prompt. "Haunted Houses ARE..." and "Haunted Houses HAVE..."

This is a super-fun way to build vocabulary, and practice adjectives, as well as nouns.

You can give students a choice of which prompt they want to make a "list" for, or they can work on the "Are" portion one day, and then finish the "Have" part on another day. Completed projects make an awesome bulletin board display, or can be hung back-to-back & suspended from the ceiling.

the heat! I feel rather chilly."

"All this dust is going to make me sneeze!"

"I'm so bored.
It's always dead around here."

If I Lived In A Haunted House

These are 3 more writing prompts. As always everything comes in color as well as black & white for students. A graphing extension "Would you want to live in a spooky house?" Makes for a nice discussion of "Why?" or "Why Not?" and could also be used as a 7th writing prompt.

Trick or Treat!

Let's say that you would visit a so called "haunted" house to "trick or treat"...

1. Would you go alone?
2. Who would you go with?
3. Who do you think would answer the door?
4. What treats do you think they would they give?

Haunted Houses ARE

If you're a fan of The Dollar Store like I am, then you may get a little excited that they now carry ginormous wiggle eyes! They are 4 1/2 inches and come in 3 different shapes. (Oh the possibilities!)

I chose the round ones and used them to take the place of the two letter Os in the word Look!

I made the webby-looking letters for you, if you'd like to enhance your bulletin board display of your students' completed haunted houses.
