Happy
Valentine's Day.

I hope it's magical!!

Valentine Heart Wand

Materials:

- Red and/or pink construction paper
- Red, and/or pink metallic or regular curling ribbon
- Scissors
- Glue stick
- Elmer's glue
- Old file folders
- Red glitter
- Straws
- Skewer sticks

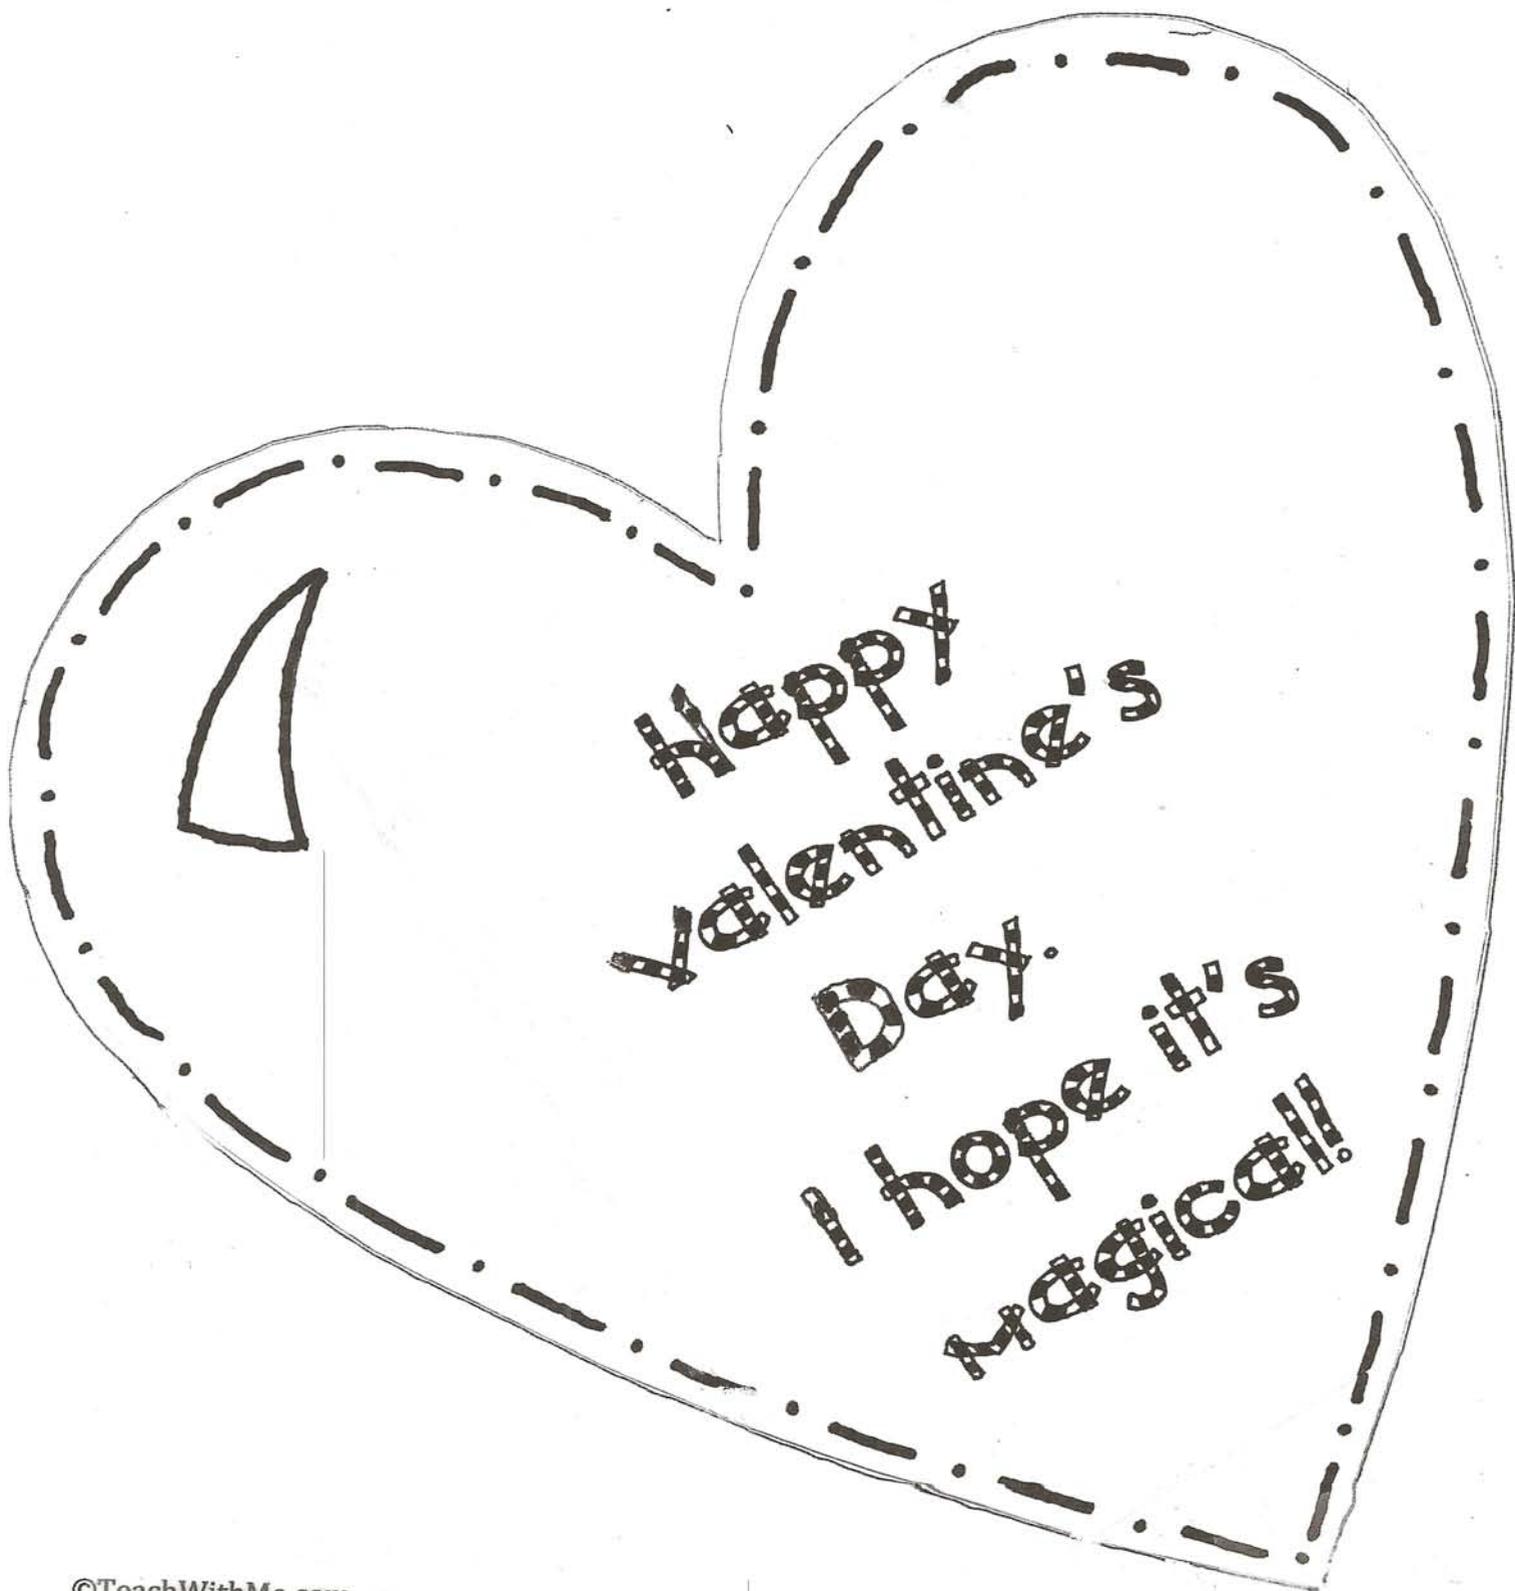

Directions:

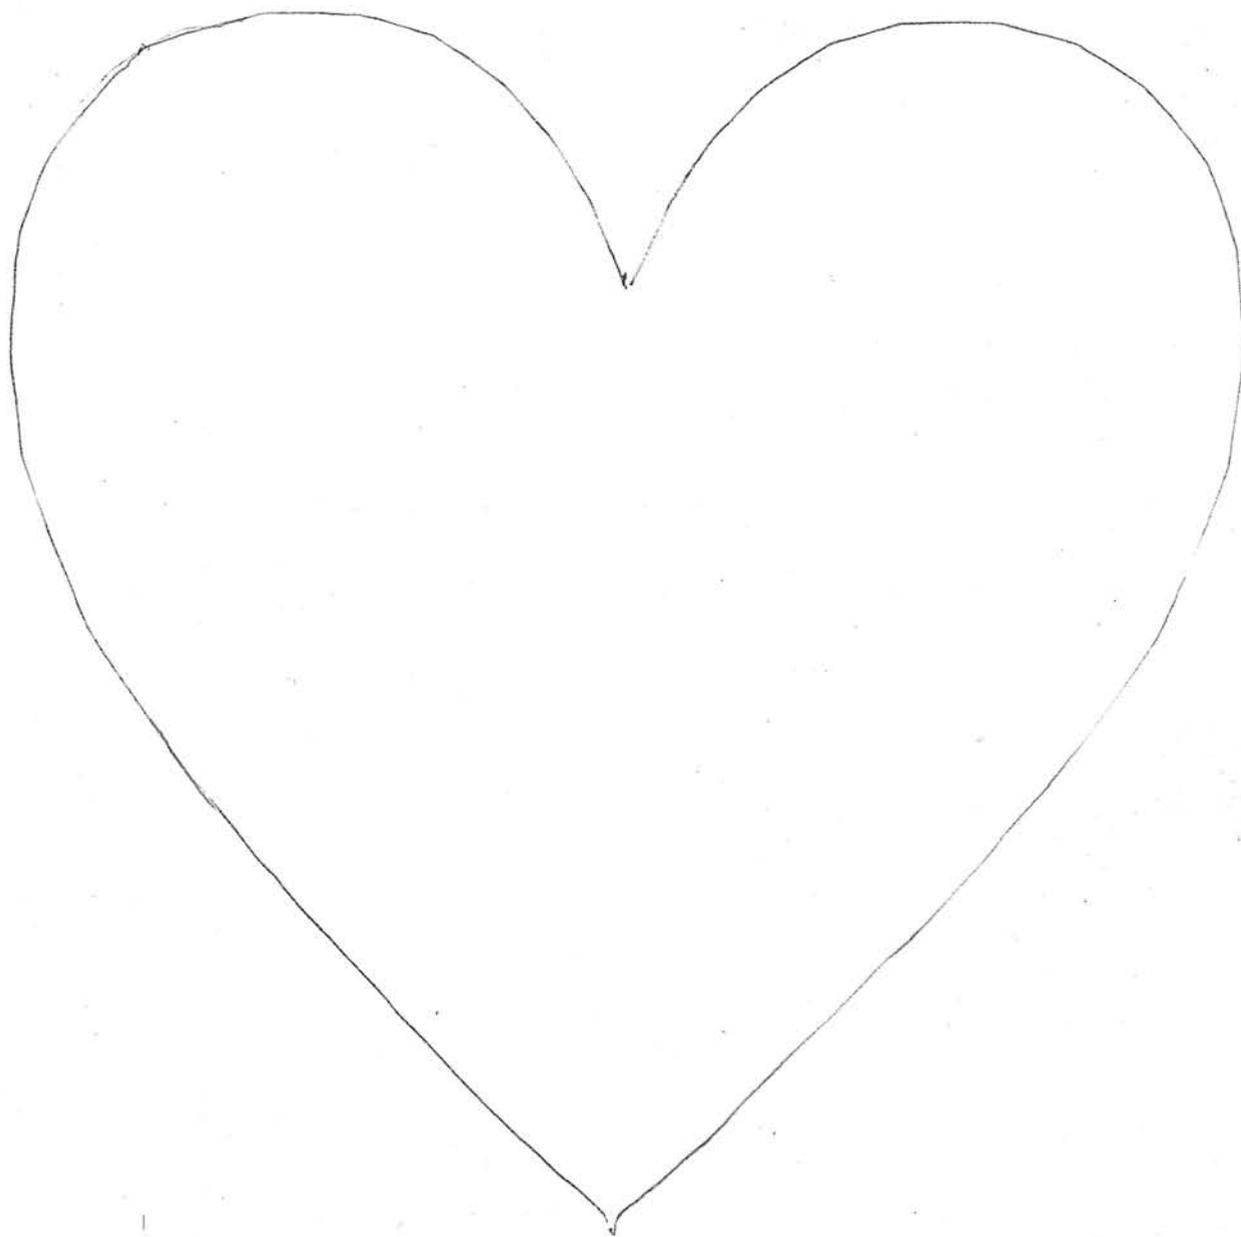

1. Run off the master on red/pink construction paper.
2. Cut out the hearts.
3. Cut the smaller back heart out of old file folders so that the wand is sturdier and won't flop over.
4. Insert skewer into straw. This will make it sturdy so it won't bend. The point will stick out about two inches. I don't like to just use a skewer, as little ones wave their wands and I don't want to chance them poking each other accidentally. The straw is safer.
5. Glue the heart on the back on top of the skewer point. Tape the skewer in place.
6. I'm big on finishing touches so I added two stickers to cover the tape.
7. Cut 3 pieces of 15-inch long curling ribbon. Use one strand to tie all of them to the end of the heart and curl the ends.
8. You can simply write a student's name on the back, leave it plain or really add pizzazz by writing their name in glitter glue. It's worth the extra effort for the "wow!" effect you'll get.
9. Lay them name up on your students' desks on party day.

Whatever you're doing I hope it truly is magical!
