

Happy New Year!

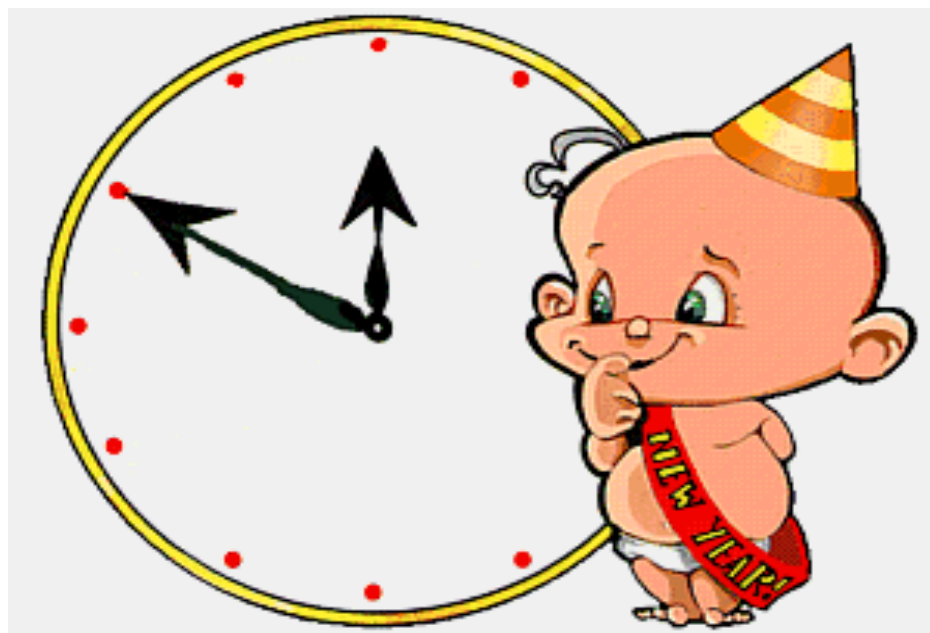

In the New Year I Promise to ABC...

Directions:

- Run off and hang up the word art posters.
- Explain them to your students.
- Run off the In the New Year I promise to ABC page.
- Have students read the words aloud.
- Students circle the things they promise to do.
- They need at least 1 for each letter of the alphabet.
- Can anyone think of any other words they'd like to add? i.e. perhaps the word pray for non-public schools.
- Students can make a New Year's dictionary of their promise words.
- Students can make their own word art poster and list.
- I made the word art in <http://www.tagxedo.com/>
- For more skill building, I've included trace and write pages.
- Fill in and laminate a set and then cut them apart and store in an envelope, so students can arrange them in alphabetical order.
- Make up 2 sets so students can play "Speed" against each other.
- These words are all verbs so it's great practice for reviewing what a verb is.

- Any of these activities make fun Daily 5 Word Work lessons.
- Encourage students to look up any words they don't know and to use their new vocabulary.
- Make a copy for your word wall.
- Make sure you do your own to use as a sample.
- If students do the word art activity, you have an awesome January bulletin board. Have them mount their finished work on various colors of blue construction paper. Arrange on a background of aluminum foil and sprinkle some paper snowflakes on the corners of each one.
- At the end of the month or school year, ask students to re-visit their list.
- Have they done all of the words they circled? Have they added anymore?
- This evaluation can then become a writing prompt of why or why not, and how they can improve etc.
