

Half of me likes

but then half of me also likes

Half and Half

Diane L. Henderson

Half of me likes sweet deserts like glazed donuts, but half of me likes the tangy sour taste of caramel apples, cherry pie and lemon bars.

Half of me likes Rock 'n Roll oldies, but half of me likes easy-listening country and gospel music too.

Half of me likes an adventurous night on the town, but half of me would rather stay home and read a good book by the fire.

Speaking of books, half of me craves murder-mystery-suspense; the other half wants a simple romance.

Half of me LOVES Mexican food, but the other half would rather eat Chinese or a pizza.

Half of me enjoys popping out of bed in the morning, excited about a new day, but half of me would rather pull the patchwork quilt over my head and sleep in.

Half of me is a driven perfectionist always on the go, the other half needs her veg-out state of just being.

Half of me embraces winter and loves the sparkling snow, the other half would rather be on a warm beach during summer vacation.

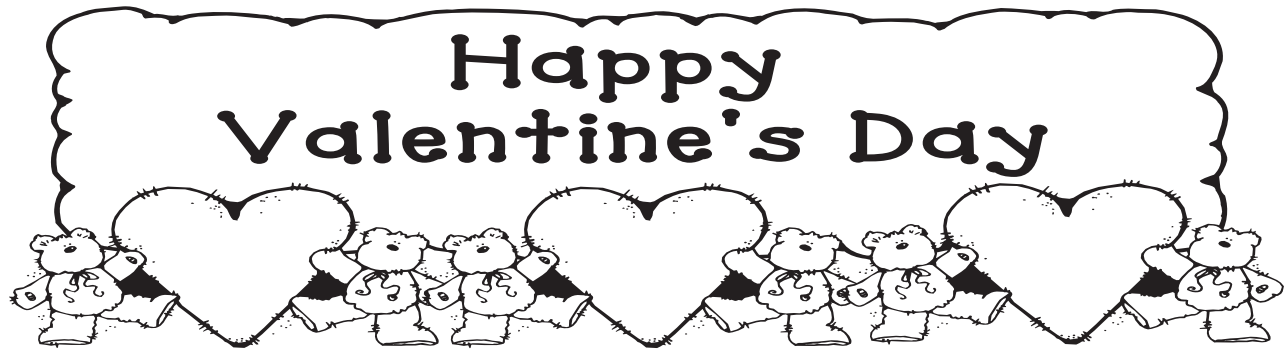

Finally, half of me adores dressing to the nines, the other half would just as soon stay in comfortable P.J's all day.

It's good to be a little bit this and a little bit that; after all, variety is the spice of life, but then, sometimes I like it spicy and other times I'll take it mild.

Half of me likes

but then half of me also likes

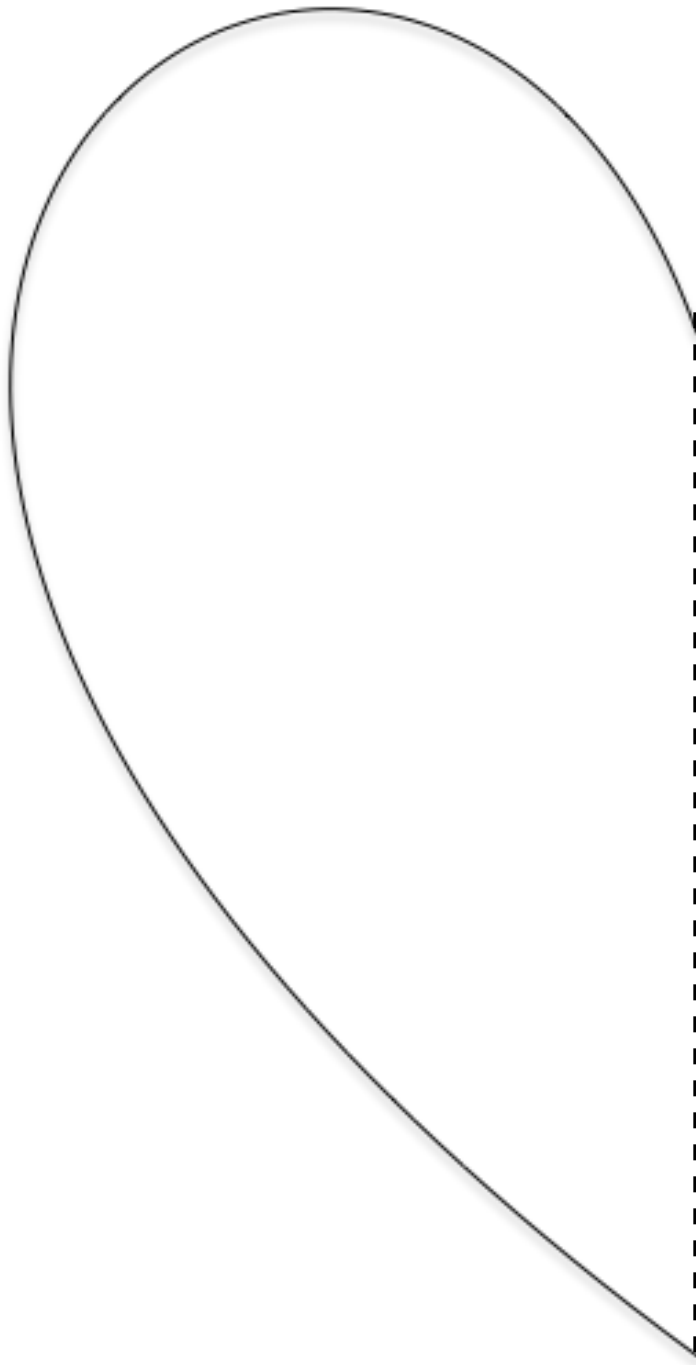

Folded Paper Heart Craftivity

- Run off the "half heart" pattern page on a variety of colors of construction paper, so that students can choose their favorite.
- Children fold their heart paper on the dashed line and then cut on the solid line.
- They will be happily surprised when they unfold their paper to reveal a whole heart.
- For younger students, it's always a good idea to make a sample to show how to fold and cut.
- You can stop here, or if you want to do another craftivity, have students cut their heart in half.
- Students also need to cut the paper with the "heart hole" in half as well.
- Children glue the half heart to one side of the writing prompt paper, and the "heart hole" to the other half to make a positive-negative "reverse" piece of art.
- You can leave it at this, or have students complete the writing prompt: "Half of me likes _____ and the other half of me likes _____."
- See my sample for further clarification.

cTeachWithMe.com

Folded Heart

Half of me likes	but then half of me also likes
Half of me likes	but then half of me also likes
Half of me likes	but then half of me also likes
Half of me likes	but then half of me also likes
Half of me likes	but then half of me also likes
Half of me likes	but then half of me also likes

Half and Half

Diane L. Henderson

Half of me likes sweet deserts like glazed donuts, but half of me likes the tangy sour taste of caramel apples, cherry pie and lemon bars.

Half of me likes Rock 'n Roll oldies, but half of me likes easy-listening country and gospel music too.

Half of me likes an adventurous night on the town, but half of me would rather stay home and read a good book by the fire.

Speaking of books, half of me craves murder-mystery-suspense; the other half wants a simple romance.

Half of me LOVES Mexican food, but the other half would rather eat Chinese or a pizza.

Half of me enjoys popping out of bed in the morning, excited about a new day, but half of me would rather pull the patchwork quilt over my head and sleep in.

Half of me is a driven perfectionist always on the go, the other half needs her veg-out state of just being.

Half of me embraces winter and loves the sparkling snow, the other half would rather be on a warm beach during summer vacation.

Finally, half of me adores dressing to the nines, the other half would just as soon stay in comfortable P.J's all day.

It's good to be a little bit this and a little bit that; after all, variety is the spice of life, but then, sometimes I like it spicy and other times I'll take it mild.