Run off on red construction paper.
Trace one of your student's hands on green construction paper.
Cut out and cover the green stem area.
Run off the 2nd page template. Cut and staple.
Include a group photo and have all the children sign the card.

We appreciate you
"berry" much!

This is the back page of the card.
Run off on red construction paper.
Staple the stem to the front strawberry stem
so that the card flips up.

This free strawberry card is part of my End-of-the-Year Appreciation Packet.
It's just $2.00 in my TpT store.

This "berry" special card is super-simple to make.
I traced one of my student's hands for the leaves.
The card flips up to reveal a photo of my class.
Signed with: "We appreciate you!
Love from, Mrs. Henderson's kindergarten class."
Everyone wrote their name on the back.

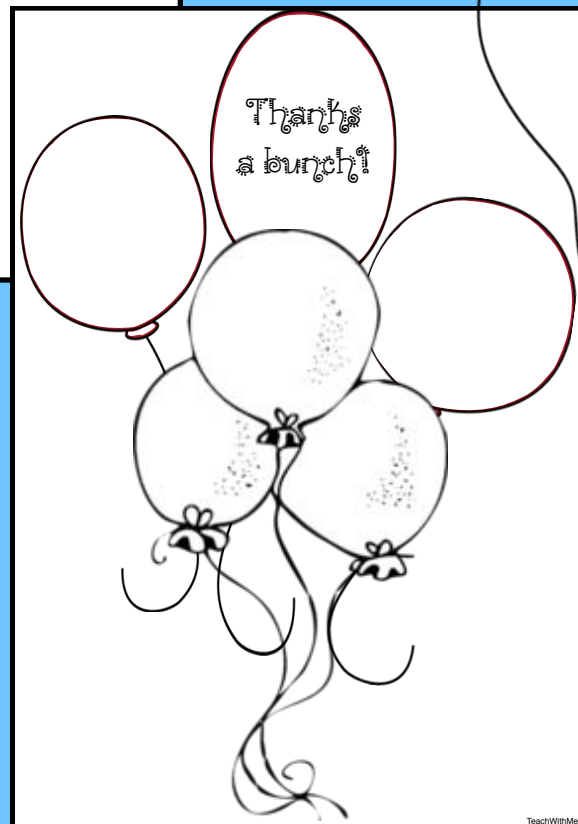

Here are two
"Thanks a bunch!"
covers for a sweet card.

Poem I wrote for the inside of the card.

Glue your students' photos
inside the circles.

I "hinged" the front flap of the bus with a piece of Scotch tape, but you could staple it too.

The "grill" flips open to reveal the child's thank you note.

I designed this specifically for a bus driver, but you could use it for other school staff or helpers as well.

Thank you acrostic poem.

card.

2 sizes of "Thank you for all you do!" covers.

Another
"Thank you!"
cover option.
A large size,
plus 2-on-a-page.

More thank you writing prompt worksheets.

Print the poster, mount on construction paper.

This is the front cover.

Send the note home.

You can make this a large card and glue some of the handprints on the front, or simply add extra pages for however many handprints you need to showcase.

Students will be super-excited to share this with their teacher. As a special presentation, each child could read their own handprint.

Dear Families,

Shhhh! It's a secret. We are going to surprise _____ with a special card.

Please trace your child's hand on the construction paper and have them cut it out. Assist them in writing a little note and remind them to sign it. These will be glued down, so please make sure everything is on the front.

I will be collecting them on _____, so I need this on or before that day.

Please put it back in the envelope. Thanks in advance for your help and cooperation.

Respectfully,

Thank a Teacher!
