My caterpillar's hungry.
His name is M.C. Munch.
He likes to eat all sorts of things
especially for lunch.
Feed him ...
numbers, letters, shapes and so on.
He'll buzz and thank you very much.

These are all of the story cards. Pass them out to your students before reading The Very Hungry Caterpillar, when you come to a section in the story featuring that card, pause and have the child holding that card "feed" it to the caterpillar. Afterwards, check comprehension by using the cards to retell the story as a whole group.

Alpha-pillar alphabet cards. Besides "feeding" the caterpillar, students can play Memory Match games, matching an uppercase letter to a lowercase letter. They can also play "Speed Sequence" to see who can be the first to put the cards in alphabetical order. You can also mix up the 3 sets and they can sort them. Play "I Have; Who Has?" as a whole group.

Ordinal number practice. Sequence the food that the hungry caterpillar ate.

There are clocks to the hour, plus clocks to the half hour, as well as a blank set of clocks so you can program with other times.

Life cycle of a butterfly cards.

All of the words from all of the Dolch word lists are included. Each list of words has a different graphic so they are easy to sort.

Days of the week cards featuring the food that the caterpillar ate on that day.

Color cards. Besides feeding these to the very hungry caterpillar, children can play Memory Match with a partner, matching butterfly to butterfly or butterfly to word cards. Play "I Have; Who Has?" as a whole group game. Add the "Kaboom" cards for more fun.
