Children's Books:

I give my students little bottles of bubbles to celebrate 100 Day so I have a basket of bubble stories to read too. This is in celebration of the fact that by now all of them can skip-count to 100 by 10's and are receiving their certificate and a bottle of bubbles-thus the bubble stories!

I also have a big bubble gum machine poster that we have colored in a gumball each day, counting up to 100. In celebration of that I bring in a real gumball machine, they each have earned a penny to put in the machine and get a gumball to chew. They think this is great fun!

There are so many books and not enough time to read them all, so I read several each day the week of 100-Day.

Besides the ones I listed on page one, the ones with the * are ones I also make sure I get to.

My students have DARE time at the end of each day. They choose a book to read on their tummies. I also have 6 bean bags that students get to sack out in on a rotation basis. The books come from the theme of the week.

Hooray! Hooray! It's 100 Day!
